

Museum of Craft and Design DESIGNING ACTION

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

In the midst of attention to systemic racism, reform, historical antecedents to current policy and the lived experience of Black people in the U.S., people across the country are seeking resources and constructive means of action.

This 30-day plan includes avenues for self-education, consideration, reflection, and engagement—and is designed to look at the issue through multiple lenses and perspectives. MCD therefore does not expressly endorse any individual views shared herein, but rather encourages the viewer to do the work in drawing their own conclusions.

Designing implies thinking about the future, and how such action will fit into our lives and structures today and to come. This is just one approach to designing action, and you may choose to expand the list based on our repeating elements.

RECOMMENDED AGE/SKILL LEVEL:

Recommended for adults.

INSTRUCTIONS

Follow along with our 30-days of action. Go daily, weekly, or at whichever pace suits you.
